Customer Reviews

This little primer is for very new readers. It contains about 28 different vocabulary words, the more difficult ones being: bend, blow, brave, doctor, and goodbye. [Easier words are the standard: but, can, do, go, I, if, it's, you, what... and the like.] The story revolves around a little boy's visit to the doctor and all of the things that he is asked to do there. He can, for example, go 'ahhh'. He can also blow, kick and bend. The book even shows him giving a urine sample and finally receiving a shot. The text is very simple with most pages (actually every other page) having only one very short sentence. Younger children should be able to memorize the text and practice 'pretend' reading. Four Stars. Mundane artwork, but kind of a cute story that children can relate to: a visit to the doctor. I read this to my preschooler before his last well-visit and it was well received.

this is a really cute story and a low level AR book

Good
