Customer Reviews

As a 5th grade teacher I teach about the Vikings during an Explorers unit each year. I love these Interactive History Adventures, but this one is just a little too violent for me to feel comfortable using in the classroom. I know the Vikings were raiders and killers but I don't need to see it so glorified, and I don't think my students do either.

The interactive history books have been winners for my son. He loves finding out if his choices take him down a path where he lives or dies, thrives or suffers. I love that they make history interesting for him.

Love it! Everything but the 4th chapter is great. The 4th chapter is impossible to survive in. It should be rated for ages 8+.

My son loved the book! Great adventure for kids to go on from the comfort of your own home. Looking for to reading the other ones!

9 year old thought it was just okay

I've looked for you choose books for a while and just found these. They're very simple. Not much to them. They repeat the same ending often also Bought as my daughters homework.
